finem egressi legemque priorum
oddities and vulgarities in the ancient world

Keynote Speaker:
Jerzy Linderski
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

The First Annual North Carolina Classics Graduate Colloquium
Sponsored by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Duke University

In classical studies, we often encounter evidence that challenges our fundamental assumptions about the ancient world. The ancients, too, faced challenges to how they viewed and experienced their world. It is in dealing with that evidence that we redefine our field, and the ancients their world. This colloquium calls for papers that call into question modern or ancient preconceptions about the ordinary and familiar in the ancient world. Topics might come from, but are not limited to, the following fields:

textual criticism
   literature (language, meter, or genre)
      custom, ritual, and religion politics, law, and governance
            sources and historiography
               art, architecture, and archaeology

Please submit a 250-350 word abstract by mail, email, or fax no later than 10 January 1998. Do not include your name or affiliation on the abstract. Instead, please submit with your abstract a 3x5 index card with your name, address, phone number, email address, institution affiliation, and paper title. (If you are submitting by email, simply send this information in a separate message.) Participants will be notified by mail or email by 31 January 1998. We are not strictly limiting the length of presentations; however, please indicate on your index card how long you would like to speak. Limited travel funding is available.

1998 North Carolina Classics Graduate Colloquium
c/o Noel R. Fiser
Department of Classics
University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Murphey Hall, CB #3145
Chapel Hill, NC 27599-3145
classics@unc.edu
FAX: 919-962-4036

28-28 March 1998
Chapel Hill, NC

Please see the Colloquium homepage (http://www.unc.edu/depts/classics/gc) for up-to-date information.