Berthe M. Marti Affiliated Fellowship at the American Academy in Rome. This fellowship is supported by an endowment held and administered by Bryn Mawr College. It provides funding for an ABD doctoral student or recent PhD (awarded with previous three years) to conduct research for an academic year in Rome. An award can usually be made every two or three years, and it usually alternates between Bryn Mawr and UNC Chapel Hill students. It thus typically becomes available for a UNC student every five or six years; the Chair announces its availability and solicits applications in the preceding academic year. Eligibility for this Fellowship is limited to those who work on a Latin topic, including medieval Latin, palaeography, and textual criticism; those working in Greek, archaeology, Byzantine Studies, and Renaissance Studies are explicitly excluded. It is an advantage, but not a requirement, to have a project that would benefit from on-site research in Rome.

American School of Classical Studies in Athens (ASCSA). The ASCSA has a number of fellowships to fund graduate students who are Regular Members of the school's academic-year program. Transcripts, recommendations, and examinations in Greek Language, History, and Archaeology or Literature are required.
